Suggestions for a different daily study routine

It is easier to study together!

Appointment to learn: Make an appointment for virtual learning! The people involved sit at their workplace, work on their respective tasks and can see each other while doing so. This can increase the motivation to sit at the desk at the time of the appointment and it can help them to persevere. According to the motto: If I see that the others are still working, I can motivate myself longer.

Set common learning goals: Form a learning group (not too large, max. 4 persons) and discuss by which time you want to have completed which tasks or topics. At the agreed time, meet virtually and discuss contents and questions.

Suggestions for a different daily study routine

Preparation for exams: If you prepare for an exam together, you can prepare practice questions for each other or put together a mock exam. The exchange of information can then take place virtually.

Early cross-linking: Don't waste too much time on tricky tasks while learning. You do not have to solve everything on your own. Network with fellow students, ask questions and exchange information. This can save time and nerves.

Some students also make virtual appointments with their circle of friends, e.g. for a Skype dinner or a virtual games evening ...

Mask obligation

Wearing FFP2 masks will be compulsory in public transport and retail.

FFP2 masks are now only required in all campus buildings.

For general information and recommendation on COVID-19 and its effects on the University, see our webpages on the corona virus (in English)

Please reduce your social contacts and stay in your accommodation to curb the spread of the virus!

Take good care of yourself and stay in good health!
