Award for Excellence in Teaching 2025

20 April 2026

Prof. Dr Sibylle Gaisser from our Faculty of Engineering has been awarded the 'Prize for Excellence in Teaching' by the Bavarian Ministry of Science!

Her teaching is characterised by a diversity of methods:

- In her specialist areas of biotechnology, biology, recombinant drugs and bioethics, she introduces students to research and practical issues over several semesters, incorporating the opportunities and risks of AI. The projects range from experiments and conference formats to entrepreneurship.
- Constructive alignment as a direct link between learning objectives and assessment methods.
- Promotion of critical and reflective thinking using a specially developed toolbox in the field of bioethics.
- The 'cultural activities', offered across faculties, combine students' creativity with self-organised and interdisciplinary learning. This creates a space for personal development, which is showcased each semester as a cultural evening.

Ansbach University of Applied Sciences would like to thank them for their commitment and offers its warmest congratulations!
